

All things point to God

The purpose of this class is to fully understand the thoughts and actions of the time period_____ including, but not limited to:

history	sports	social culture
philosophy	literature	film
religion	art	theater
fashion	music	science

- To explore and explain the “why’s” of the time.
- To allow the student to be able to immerse themselves in the time by following their own passions within the parameters of the years given.
- To let them take their passion for a topic and explore it, research it, and teach it.
- To use God given interests and gifts in pursuing knowledge, such blessing should not be squandered.
- To have hands on experiences and projects that are student lead and facilitator approved. We shall let the students imaginations drive the projects. We will encourage, but not dictate.
- To learn the proper etiquette to debate and discuss with each other.
- The use of real documents, essays, and books relevant to the time are critical. These will most likely follow Ambleside Online year 11 this year, as it provides an excellent outline of reading materials and follows specific years.
- Students must keep track of hours. These hours are the only way for a parent to properly document credits following a carnegie unit (120-180 hrs per credit). What the parent uses this hours for are between them and the student as some will delve into history and some may lean towards the arts, all should be able to claim literature.
- The goal is to see students learn to be lifelong learners.
- Involvement of the community to relate their experiences on topics.
